Durham-Orange Light Rail Transit Project

March 2015

The NEPA Preferred Alternative for the D-O LRT Project would generally follow NC 54, I-40, US 15-501, and the North Carolina Railroad (NCRR) Corridor in downtown Durham and east Durham. The alignment would begin at UNC Hospitals, parallel Fordham Boulevard, proceed east on NC 54, travel north on I-40, parallel US 15-501 before it turns east toward the Duke University campus along Erwin Road, and then follow the NCRR Corridor parallel to NC 147 through downtown Durham, before reaching its eastern terminus near Alston Avenue. The alignment would consist of at-grade alignment, fill and cut sections, and elevated structures. In two sections of the alignment, Little Creek and New Hope Creek, multiple Light Rail Alternatives are evaluated in the DEIS.

This technical report contains information for all alternatives analyzed in the DEIS. However, pursuant to MAP 21, the Moving Ahead for Progress in the 21st Century Act (P.L. 112-141), a NEPA Preferred Alternative has been developed, which recommends C2A in the Little Creek section of the alignment, NHC 2 in the New Hope Creek section of the alignment, the Trent/Flowers Drive station, and the Farrington Road Rail Operations and Maintenance Facility.

1. Introduction

This Appendix supplements the Historic Architectural Survey Report (Survey Report) for the Durham-Orange Light Rail Transit (D-O LRT) project. The Survey Report analyzes the eligibility for listing in the National Register of Historic Places (National Register or NR) of resources surveyed at the intensive level that are located within the D-O LRT project's Area of Potential Effects (APE). This Appendix provides information on resources surveyed at the reconnaissance level and summarizes the information included in the Survey Report on intensively inventoried resources. It includes an APE Overview and Project Locator Map (Figure A 1) and a set of detailed maps of the APE that locate all resources that were inventoried at the reconnaissance and intensive level (Figure A 2 through Figure A 21). It includes tables—one for Orange County, the other for Durham County—that contain the following information for each resource: an ID number keyed to the APE maps; the Appendix APE map figure number; the Appendix photo figure number(s); an address or general boundary; a PIN or parcel number for each resource with the exception of those that have numerous identification numbers; the names of subdivisions associated with resources, if any; other information, as known and appropriate, including name, date of construction, and history; previous NR-status, if any; and a summary of the reasons why a resource was recommended eligible or not eligible for NR listing. Finally, photographs and, in a few instances, maps of each resource follow the tables. Photographs of all resources are included but for those that are assessed, and extensively depicted, in the Survey Report.

Reconnaissance-level fieldwork was conducted within the APE and an initial study area that extended beyond the APE. During this effort, 277 resources and groups of resources were identified and assigned survey numbers ranging from 1 to 277. Not all of these resources, however, were located within the APE as finally drawn. Gaps in the numbering sequence of the resources included within this Appendix reflect the exclusion of resources not located within the APE.

Its historic bounds as depicted on Orange County subdivision maps from the 1950s and 1960s largely fall within the APE. Therefore most of its resources are recorded (ID## 40, 42-58) and depicted (Figure A 40 through Figure A 56) below. It has no notable history and, architecturally, is also not notable, particularly when measured against many other contemporary neighborhoods in Chapel Hill that are NR-listed in or eligible. It is not considered NR-eligible under Criteria A, B, C, or D.

Its combination of cooperative housing, intended to create reasonably priced homeownership and a close sense of community, with modernist architecture, which was intended to project the progressive ideals of the cooperative members who chose to be neighbors and friends, is an excellent representative of this area of significance. The neighborhood’s modernist and ranch-style houses comprise a notable collection of modest mid-twentieth-century house types, but due to their many alterations they no longer retain sufficient integrity to support significance under Criterion C.

The nomination included the main house, play house, pool house and pool, vegetable garden with former smokehouse, garage, well house, two poultry houses, an unidentified building, two storage buildings, brooder house, greenhouse, and a walled garden. Of these resources only the house, perhaps portions of the landscaping, and the Dubose Family cemetery survive. The house retains its significance and integrity, but were the boundaries redrawn to reflect current conditions, they would contract to a much smaller area confined to the dwelling and its immediate grounds.

In addition to its c1918 house, it has a c1918 milkhouse/washhouse and garage, which retain original gutters and charcoal filtration systems that feed into an underground cistern; an early woodshed and brooder house; a c1935 log playhouse complete with a goldfish pond and decorative plantings; and a c1946 shop and 1960 barn. This large collection of buildings is quite intact within a surprisingly bucolic setting, particularly in a section of eastern Durham and western Orange counties that has undergone rapid development in the past 20 years. The property is not believed to be historically significant.

Carr was prolific architect and many of his buildings still stand in Durham and elsewhere in NC; he rarely worked in modernist style (http://www.opendurham.org/people/carr-george-watts-sr). In 1956 and 1962 entries submitted to AIA directories, he did not identify hospital among his notable works (see, for example, http://public.aia.org/sites/hdoaa/wiki/American%20Architects%20Directories/1962%20American%20Architects%20Directory/Bowker_1962_C.pdf). 179	A17	See Report	2204 Erwin Rd	104568		Hanes Annex and Potential Duke University Nurses and Graduate Student Dormitories Historic District See Report for assessment, recommendation, and photographs	FER	Hanes Annex, Hanes House, and Trent Hall, which comprise the potential Duke University Nurses and Graduate Student Dormitories HD, are not believed to be sufficiently significant under any of the NR's Criteria to be individually eligible for listing. Viewed within the context of the many architecturally similar, contemporary buildings located on Duke's West and East campuses and elsewhere throughout Durham, their institutional Colonial Revival-style architecture is not notable. They also have no close connection with persons important in our history. Within the context of the history of Duke University and its numerous mid-twentieth-century buildings, they are also not historically notable. Further, modern and highly visible exterior alterations have compromised the integrity of Hanes Annex, and Hanes House and Trent Hall no longer retain their integrity due to extensive interior alterations. The three are therefore not recommended as individually eligible for NR listing. For the same reasons the three buildings are not recommended as constituting a NR-eligible historic district: in the context of Duke's two campuses, they do not comprise a sufficiently significant and distinguishable entity, with sufficient integrity, to support NR listing. The buildings, individually and together, are therefore not recommended as NR eligible under Criteria A, B, C, or D.

It is a good representative example of early twentieth-century Neoclassical Revival-style commercial architecture, but no longer retains sufficient integrity to support significance for its architecture due to its many alterations. These include the modern addition to its west side elevation and changes to that elevation's entry; the changes to the garage bays and windows at the rear elevation; the attachment of a modern crematorium to the rear of the chapel; the alterations to the chapel's portico; and many changes that have modernized the interior. The resource has no known connection with historic events. Its history as an early Durham funeral home is not believed to meet the Register's standards of historic association and it is therefore not recommended as NR eligible under Criterion A. It also has no known association with significant persons and is unlikely to yield important information not readily available from other sources. It is therefore not recommended as NR eligible under Criteria A, B, C, or D. It is also not considered NR-eligible as part of any potential West Main Street Business Historic District, as noted at #206 below.

275	A21	Figure A 324- Error! Reference source not found.	2000 E Pettigrew St	118868		Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company (DH-2079, not DH-2075) – tax date of 1900; on 1907 Sanborn; now Brenntag, chemical distribution company		The Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company has lost its integrity through the loss of numerous central buildings and the alteration of its surviving early buildings. It does not have sufficient integrity as a potential historic district to support NR listing under any of the Register's Criteria. The individual buildings, in the context of the other more intact and NR-listed and eligible industrial buildings in Durham, have also lost too much integrity—through enclosure of bays, replacement of sash, addition of service bays, addition of modern shutters, and other alterations—to be NR eligible under any of the Criteria. Both the complex and its individual buildings are therefore not considered NR-eligible under Criteria A, B, C, or D. The complex is also not considered NR-eligible as part of any other listed, eligible, or otherwise identified historic district. It was excluded from the Durham Cotton Mills Village Historic District (NR-listed 1985), which was limited to the then-intact surviving portion of the company's mill village located south of NC 147. It was also not included within the 965-resource East Durham HD opposite it on the north side of the railroad tracks (NR-listed 2004). That nomination states that the: "District boundaries follow the logic of historical development. The Southern Railway tracks form the historical boundary between the mills and mill villages south of the tracks and the privately owned housing within the district to the north." The largely residential district includes non-residential resources opposite the mill and the nomination notes that: "East Durham, the largest and most densely populated historic neighborhood in Durham, began with the construction of the Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company along the North Carolina Railroad tracks in 1884." It nevertheless excluded the surviving buildings of the company.
